

Chinese in Wales Association: Projects and Services

Publisher: Chinese in Wales Association (CIWA)

Document type: Community partner profile

Source: <https://chineseinwales.org.uk/#projects>

Retrieved: 2026-06-20

Corpus role: Community (CIWA) — national-origin index

Chinese in Wales Association (CIWA): Projects and Services

Chinese in Wales Association (CIWA), UK-registered charity number 1175444, head office Swansea. Source: chineseinwales.org.uk (projects). Community-partner material, used as LPA corpus ground-truth with partner consent.

Mission

CIWA is community-led and grassroots-based and serves as the first point of contact for ethnic Chinese residents in Wales, providing information, resources and support. Its mission is to promote community cohesion, support those facing disadvantage, and promote the sharing of both Chinese and Welsh culture and heritage. The association operates across English, Mandarin, Cantonese and Welsh.

Advocacy and information services

- General advocacy — advice, information, referrals, and casework advocacy to help individuals access their rights and entitlements and feel included and connected to their communities.
- Hate crime reporting — a dedicated service supporting community members in reporting hate crime. This is the project most directly relevant to the LPA system: it locates CIWA as an existing community channel for responding to racially and nationality-motivated hostility, and a natural organisational home for community-in-the-loop moderation support.
- Welfare advice — guidance on local welfare, housing, healthcare, education and employment.
- Autism support — targeted advocacy support.

Health and wellbeing services

Mental-health resources and helplines, counselling services, and dedicated programmes for older people and young people. CIWA notes that the Chinese older population in Wales faces isolation due to language barriers and dispersed families, and provides social, physical and outdoor activities for adults aged 50+.

Interpretation and translation service

Translation and interpretation in Mandarin, Cantonese, English and Welsh, aimed at breaking down language barriers and facilitating effective communication between individuals and organisations, promoting understanding and integration. This service is significant for the system: it confirms that a substantial part of the community's information needs are met in Chinese languages, with implications for how hostile content (and any community-facing tool) is read and handled.

Culture and heritage services

- Our Stories — collecting the oral histories of the Chinese community in Wales.
- Dragon Festival — a research-and-development cultural project, with associated artists.
- Major cultural events including Chinese New Year celebrations (a 2025 event drew 4,288 attendees) and Chinese Cultural Heritage Day.

How this anchors the LPA corpus

CIWA's project set grounds the national-origin typology index and the operational reality of community-led response. The hate crime reporting and advocacy services establish CIWA's existing role in handling reported hostility, directly relevant to the system's incoming-content and escalation logic. The interpretation/translation and language-service emphasis reinforces the multilingual character of the community (Mandarin, Cantonese, Welsh, English), relevant to how coded or nationality-framed hostility is interpreted. The culture and heritage work (Our Stories, Dragon Festival) provides positive in-group cultural framing that helps distinguish reclaimed or community-internal expression from hostile content — supporting the over-moderation guard for this community. It pairs with CIWA's About card and complements RCC's race/ethnicity materials.